

International News

- UK News
- International News
- Community Affairs
- Editorial
- Opinion/Comment
- Letters to Editor
- Feature
- Interviews
- Reflections
- Women
- Obituaries
- Faith & Worship
- Journey Through Islam
- Art and Culture
- Science and Technology
- Travel & Tourism
- Kids
- Sport

Media Watch	Protection of Hijab
Law	Finance
Lifestyle	Education
Podium	History
Book Review	Creative Writing
Film Review	Fashion

Judeo-Muslim groups unite to create European platform

Representatives of Jewish and Muslim organisations tackled a number of important questions related to inter-religious relations at the European Conference on Jewish-Muslim Dialogue in Brussels last week.

Addressed by speakers including Imam Dr Abduljalil Sajid (Chairman of the Muslim Council for Religious and Racial Harmony UK), Rabbi Michel Serfaty (Founder & President of Amitié Judéo-Musulmane de France), participants were encouraged to join forces rather than work against each other.

A key outcome of the Conference was the establishment of a European Platform for Jewish-Muslim Co-operation to both encourage and to raise the profile of local, national and Europe-wide dialogue and co-operation initiatives.

In providing a forum for the sharing of experiences, ideas and good practices, the Conference also witnessed the initiation of new partnerships between organisations and the development of project ideas in the arts, media coverage of Jewish and Muslim issues, religious diversity training, grassroots involvement, academic co-operation and joint lobbying efforts.

Awards for best practice in Jewish-Muslim co-operative initiatives were also proposed.

The Conference also saw the release of 'mapping reports' compiling information on partnerships, initiatives and best practice in the field of Jewish-Muslim dialogue in Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, the UK and France.

Presented by Dr Richard Stone, Founding Director of Alif-Alef UK, the reports showed that although there were real challenges facing dialogue initiatives – including not only the Middle East conflict and gender issues but also structural differences between communities and the need for time and effort to sustain dialogue – there was nevertheless a great deal of positive contact between both communities.

Organised by Brussels-based Jewish anti-racism organisation CEJI with guidance from a Jewish-Muslim Steering Group, the Conference was conceived with a view to promoting dialogue, exchange of best practice, co-operation and partnership between Jewish and Muslim communities in Europe.

It welcomed seventy Jews and Muslims from Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark, the UK and France who are involved in or interested in dialogue at a community level.

Organisations represented included the European Muslim Network, the International Council of Jewish Women (ICJW) and Islamic Relief.

Imam Dr Abduljalil Sajid said: "The European Conference comes at a crucial time in Jewish-Muslim relations. In bringing together people working to increase religious harmony and tolerance within their own communities, it provides a much-needed focus on their achievements and is an important step towards tackling animosity and misunderstanding between Jews and Muslims."

CEJI Director Robin Sclafani said that Jewish-Muslim dialogue initiatives were valuable not only for creating respect and understanding between communities, but also as "a source of inspiration for intercultural relations as a whole and a demonstration of solidarity in the fight against all forms of racism".

While participant Shereen Williams of Radio Salaam Shalom, the UK's first Muslim and Jewish radio station, said: "There is an increasing understanding that Jews and Muslims in the UK and worldwide have a common history that dates back thousands of years. Now, more than ever, it is time to draw on and learn from our positive cultural experiences."

So, where's your copy!

